Welcome to The Conquer The Wall Marathon 2025

Casey, Runner Coordinator

In a few short weeks you'll be traveling to China for one of the world's great adventure races. We hope the information you find in this handbook will be of use to you, and will help make your race day adventure go smoothly.

CHINESE TOURIST VISA

If you haven't applied for your visa, we strongly recommend that you do so ASAP. The Spring and Summer months in China are the peak holiday seasons, which means longer than normal processing times - so it is best to apply early rather than risk missing out. Save your last minute dash for the Great Wall of China !!

Generally an invitation letter is not required if you are providing in advance your flight information and hotel details. If a letter is still needed please email us as we are happy to send you a confirmation letter for your visa application.

COURSE INFORMATION MEETING

Runners are invited to attend the Main Course Information meetings on at the Pan Pacific Beijing Hotel (Runner's HQ).

All runners will need to show Passport, and must only collect their own race kit/bibs. You will have to sign a paper waiver when you arrive, it is the same one you signed online.

RACE KIT COLLECTION

The main bib collection station will be at the Pan Pacific hotel on May 08th and 09th from 9am-5pm.

It is very important that you pick up your race kit, those choosing to pick up their race kit at the Great Wall on race morning will incur a 100 Chinese RMB charge. No exceptions. You will need a bus pass to ride the bus to the Great Wall on race morning, if you did not pick up your race kit you will need to see Casey on race morning.

RACE PREPARATION

Please study the course maps carefully as you will need to learn where the turn off and cut off points are on the course. Do not rely on the volunteers as they might not all speak English. This is an adventure race, which means you need to be self sufficient and understand the course.

There is a challenging event, so if you take the time to read this handbook carefully, everything will go smoothly.

If you still have questions or you feel that we have missed anything please let us know (You can find our contact details on the next page).

When the going gets tough...

BEFORE YOU CONQUER THE WALL...

TRACK CONDITIONS

How tough will it be?

DID SOMEONE MENTION THE STEPS?

When the Great Wall was constructed, the designers intentionally varied the height of the steps to deter any invaders that made it onto the wall. Uneven heights made charging/fighting very difficult. It's a design strategy that has also upset the thousands of runners from around the world who try to conquer the wall each year. The 20,000 steps you will encounter will vary in height from a few centimetres to over 40cms in height, with many of the original sections little more than underfoot rubble. The message here is to train for rugged conditions!

WEATHER & SUN PROTECTION?

In the area you will be running the average temperature at the start of May is 21.8°C / 71.2°F but has been know to go as high as 27.3°C / 81.1°F and as low as 15.1°C / 59.2°F.

With an average of only 6 rainy days in May, and plenty of sunshine, it is important to reduce your dehydration risk and to have adequate sun protection. We recommend that runners use hydration packs, however there will be water stations along the course.

Generally the morning will be cool (sometimes chilly), warming up quickly through the day. With more than 30km of the 42km being run on the Great Wall, there will be very little shade, so a running hat and sunscreen is highly recommended. Sunrise on race day will be around 5:15am - 45 minutes before the start of the marathon.

TRACK ELEVATION?

Overall the Great Wall of China running course varies in height by around 200m (about 650feet) between the start line and the highest point at East Tower 20.

Stone guard towers are spread along the length of the wall, each some 200m to 300m apart. Stone steps and walkways, following the up and down contours of the ground, connect the towers.

The effect this creates for runners is similar to interval training, with an effort required to climb up, followed by a recovery period coming down. Regular training on steps as part of your preparations for the Great Wall is highly recommended.

...and don't trip!!

Going the Distance...

GETTING TO THE START LINE

Transportation to the Great Wall is included with your race entry fee. Buses will depart to the Great Wall from the Hotel at 4:00 am. Time may change to 3-3:30 am depending on the Chinese Government and if they will allow highway access before this time. This issue is out of our hands so it is important to attend your course information meetings in case there are any last minute changes.

The majority of runners will depart from the Hotel on race morning. If you wish to stay at another hotel, you are welcome. However, you will be responsible to get yourself to the hotel. Buses will leave with, or without you.

IMPORTANT: Please note the Beijing Subway will NOT be open in time for you to reach either of the departure hotels. Because of the very early morning departure to the Great Wall, you will need to arrange your own transport to the departure points (i.e. taxi reservation).

FOOD ON THE RUN?

On race morning a light snacks will be provided for all runners at the departure hotel. We recommended that breakfast is eaten at least 2 hours before the start of your race. Subway sandwiches (might) be provided. Each runner and spectator will be given a ticket with their race packet. You must turn in your ticket for a sandwich.

There will also be a light foods served at the Great Wall of China. We will have fruits, snacks, gels, and Gatorade.

Water available along the course route. All we ask is that you are mindful of not littering this remarkable structure. Waste bins can be found along the course.

RECOMMENDED SHOES TO WEAR

Because sections of the Great Wall of China have very rough underfoot conditions, we recommend you train and compete in a pair of 'Trail Running' shoes. These shoes are designed to reduce the impact from underfoot conditions whilst supporting the feet.

Make sure you are mentally ready...

MENTAL PREPARATION

by Mosi Smith.

This is going to hurt. Come to terms with that phrase and be comfortable with that fact. The Conquer the Wall Marathon will be an incredible experience wrought with adversity—whether that comes in the form of hot weather, the terrain underfoot, mental state, or training in preparation for the event.

Whether walking or running the event, you will face one challenge or several. Take comfort in the fact that everyone out there is undergoing similar pain. By coming to terms with that ahead of time, it will decrease the likelihood of panic if your race plan falls apart.

If you're reading this and have access to Google earth, do a flyover and check out the terrain, the undulating rolls of the wall, and the many staircases you will traverse. Visualize these features in your mind during your training runs. Do it so much that when you actually do set foot on the wall, you're mentally ready for what will come because you have rehearsed it so much in your mind.

Continue to train...smartly. Make use of hills, stairs, parking garages, etc., that are available in your area; work the ups and the downs so that your muscles are used to the stress of repetitive motion.

Whether your plan is to walk or run, the amount of preparation you put in ahead of time will increase the likelihood of completion as well as your enjoyment of your time out there on the wall.

Arrive at the wall motivated and keep your head there.

When I saw the course my first thoughts were, "how does anyone manage to get through this entire thing?" Herein lies the beauty of the course—it's a looped format. Take it easy on the first go around and appreciate the subtleties of the wall.

Breakdown the event into manageable chunks by focusing on one section at a time. Before you know it, you will be halfway there. At that point, you have already invested enough time and energy out there to not see it through to completion.

When the end comes, take a minute to soak it all in. Do not be surprised if you feel a pang of sadness that the experience is coming to a close. It's perfectly normal to feel that way. You have just accomplished a challenge that most athletes will never have the opportunity to undertake.

Remount the stairs, at the start/finish area and soak in the wall one last time. Pat yourself on the back as you have just conquered the wall!

We look forward to seeing you on May. So, until then, stay hungry and stay motivated.

Great achievements deserve recognition

RACE AWARDS

CLOSING CEREMONY

At 4:00pm on race day don't miss the official Closing Ceremony which will be held at the Great Wall of China to celebrate the achievements of all the runners (and their patient supporters). (Still TBD)

Whether you have run 5km or the full marathon, we think it's important to mark this very special occasion with recognition of your achievement.

Winners of each of the race categories will be formally presented with their awards, entertainment will be provided and you will have one last chance to get those all important photographs along with all your new friends.

Completing an event at the Great Wall of China is great experience, however you will be exhausted which is why we will have marshalls ready to guide you through the finish line procedures .

TIMING CHIPS

All runners will be given timing chips for their shoes, so make sure you run over the electronic timing mats at the start & finish - not around it.

MEDICAL

Don't forget that if you feel unwell after the race, or simply that you need something for those new blisters that weren't there when you started the race, we will have medical staff on standby to check you out.

We strongly recommend that you consider having adequate travel medical insurance to cover any unexpected incident on race day. (23,000 uneven stone steps? What could go wrong?)

HYDRATION

One of the greatest dangers for runners is completing the race in a dehydrated state. After the race ensure that you continue drinking water and make sure that you have been to the toilet BEFORE getting on the bus back to Beijing. If you can urinate it means that your kidneys are working and you are in good shape for the journey home.

BUS TRANSPORT FROM THE FINISH LINE

Buses returning to Beijing after the race will return at 5:00pm, or after. Last bus will leave after all runners have completed or course is closed.

For those runners whose events have finished earlier in the day, and do not wish to stay for the Closing Ceremony, a few buses will be made available throughout the afternoon to transport them back to Beijing. These buses fill on a first come first served basis.

All buses will return to the Hotel.

PLEASE NOTE: All participants in this race must wear the IPICO timing chip on your shoe in order to have their times recorded.

Wave Start

In an effort to provide every one of our participants with as comfortable a run as possible, the Wave Start will be incorporated. Participants are assigned to an appropriate corral based on the projected finishing time submitted on their entry form.

Typically, there are multiple waves assigned to several of the finishing times. All spectators should be aware of this when organizing their viewing schedule for the day.

When the gun fires, the first corral will be released. The rest of the participants will be held at the start line. At pre-determined intervals the next corral will be released.

By using this staggered starting method, the pack will be spread out and allow every runner to settle into their racing rhythm from the first step right to the finish line.

Family Reunion

After the race, reunite with family and friends and relish in your post race accomplishment with refreshments. With a large number of participants and excited spectators, it can be difficult to locate friends and family without a plan.

It is highly recommended that you designate a meet-up location for friends and family BEFORE the race.

Tell your friends about the adventure you are about to embark upon...

The experience you will remember for life...
